

R/DX/58

Deposit from Mrs B Morgan

Acc 1820

/1

Photograph of men posing on scaffolding on a building, taken by T [Thomas] Roberts, photographer of Temple Bridge Studio, Llandrindod Wells. Thomas Roberts established his studio in the 1890s. The business was taken over in the early C20th by his son, Rousham Roberts.

1890s

The builder's notice on the scaffolding reads: 'Bradney & Lloyd, Builders, Contractors, Shifnal'. Kelly's Directory of 1895 has an entry for: Bradney & Lloyd, Albrighton, Wolverhampton & New Street, Shifnal. In the Shifnal section, they are listed as "Bradney & Lloyd, builders, contractors, plumbers & decorators, New Street."

The building is thought to be the Pump House Hotel, Llandrindod Wells, which was certainly extended in the 1870s, though this photograph must date from later, since Thomas Roberts was active in the 1890s.

/2

Photograph of men posing in front of a part built railway bridge at [?Howey], taken by T [Thomas] Roberts of Llandrindod Wells and Knighton

C19th